This travelling exhibition marks the culmination of the seventh edition of the Life Framer Photography Prize. The exhibitions showcase stunning contemporary photography from 24 photographers, each chosen across twelve months of diverse themes by globally acclaimed judges including photographers Bruce Gilden, Martin Parr, Philip-Lorca diCorcia and Alex Prager, and curators and editors from Tate Modern, MoMA and The New York Times. Each theme – from Street Life to Colors to Civilization – is designed to encourage creativity, and the resulting selection of varied and challenging photography is testament to that. Join us to experience exciting documentary, conceptual, portrait, street and travel photography from image-makers spanning Britain to Brasil, via Korea, Estonia, Uruguay, the United States and more.
